Becoming a Wildflower

If we make self-love or body acceptance conditional, the truth is, we will never be happy with ourselves. The reality is that our bodies are constantly changing, and they will never remain exactly the same. If we base our self-worth on something as ever-changing as our bodies, we will forever be on the emotional roller coaster of body-obsession and shame.

A full-body photograph of a woman with long, wavy brown hair performing a deep backbend yoga pose (Urdhva Dhanurasana) on a blue mat. She is barefoot and her arms are extended upwards, with her hands resting on the floor near her feet. Her back is arched, and her head is tucked towards her knees. The setting is a bright yoga studio with large windows in the background, through which white curtains are visible. The floor is light-colored wood.

A woman with long, wavy reddish-brown hair is kneeling in dark, rippling water. She is wearing a black lace bralette, long black lace gloves, and a black thong bikini bottom with silver chain detailing. Her hands are raised near her face, and she is looking off to the side with a serene expression. The background is dark and textured, suggesting a cave or a night scene.
